

From the Desk of the Director

Happy New Year to all our readers. Another invisible milestone was crossed as 2015 slipped away and dawn broke on 2016. It promises to be a monumental year for OSSMC as my tenure as the Executive Director of this amazing program is winding down. By the middle of 2017 I expect to have handed the reins on to my successor who, we hope, will pick up the cudgel on behalf of our clients, advocating for changes affecting their lives for the better. I want to assure all our funders and supporters that our Board of Directors is fully engaged in the process, and has already put together a succession planning team to begin to chart the course for a smooth transition.

In the meantime our work must go on uninterrupted, the very core of which is advocacy. Any day of the week will find our ombudsmen in the facilities advocating for residents concerning quality of care, quality of life or the health and safety of the residents. It is surprising what can be accomplished when fully staffed. We have begun to build back the ranks of our sadly depleted field ombudsman team and as a result our statistics this past quarter far exceeded our expectations. My congratulations to all the ombudsman who have contributed to such strong numbers, reflecting a strong presence in the facilities among our clients. And our grateful thanks to all those who have believed in us over the years and continue to provide crucial financial support.

TIPPY IRWIN ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT PLANS

Submitted by Kirsten Weiss, Chair, Executive Search Committee

All good things must come to an end, and our Executive Director, Tippy Irwin, will be retiring in the spring of 2017.

Fortunately, she's given OSSMC over a year to plan for the transition. The board of directors has formed an Executive Search Committee, which has finalized a detailed workplan for the executive search. We expect to begin posting the job announcement in the summer of 2016, with an eye toward hiring a new executive director by the end of the year or January, 2017.

We've intentionally built into this timeline several months overlap between the new and departing executive directors. This way, Tippy can train her replacement in the peculiarities of managing OSSMC.

We have been tremendously fortunate to have such a dedicated, passionate, and knowledgeable executive director. OSSMC is a remarkable program, and it is due largely to Tippy's vision and hard work. We wish her best in her well-deserved retirement!

When Love Hurts

Love – a big word that encompasses so much. As I write, Valentine's Day is looming. I read an article entitled When Love Hurts: The Heartbreak of Elder Abuse, by Robert B. Blancato, and have taken much from that article to include in this brief paragraph. Most of us know and understand the love between parent and child, but we also know that love can hurt. Abuse rears its head in a multitude of ways within families. We also know that those children who are abused, in general, are destined to become abusive parents themselves. But what happens when these abusive parents are in need of caregiving towards the end of their lives? Children that have been abused have a greater chance of becoming abusive to the parent. Without intervention the cycle of violence continues in a great unbroken circle, with devastating consequences.

Statistics from 2010 indicate that $3.90 is the average spent per client on adult services through Adult Protective Services compared with $45.03 spent per child through Child Protective Services. As elder abuse is a growing epidemic, it is critical to increase funding for elder abuse prevention and stop abuse in its tracks.

One way is to support the Elder Justice Act, which was passed through bi-partisan support in Congress and signed into law in 2010. The EJA will provide support for education and programs to prevent elder abuse, but it has never been funded. It is set to expire in September. Call, write or e-mail your elected officials seeking their support for funding for the EJA. Abuse initiatives must become a greater priority if we are to put a stop to the escalating violence against elders.

Text of the Elder Justice Act

- Establishes national leadership in the Office of the Secretary of Health and Human Services in the form of an Elder Justice Coordinating Counsel and an Advisory Board.
- Authorizes grants to support improvements to Adult Protective Services and Long-Term Care Ombudsman programs, and state survey agencies for Medicare- and Medicaid-certified long-term care facilities.
- Authorizes grants for the training for APS, Ombudsman, federal and state surveyors of nursing facilities.
- Authorizes grants for forensic centers to develop expertise on elder abuse, neglect and exploitation.
- Enhances long-term care staffing, data exchange in facilities, mandatory reporting of crimes against residents in federally-funded facilities, promulgation of guidelines to assist researchers, and authorizes a study on a national nurse aide registry.

Executive Director Tippy Irwin and Director of Development Mitch Reitman represented OSSMC at Peninsula Health Care District's 2016 Community Partners Award Ceremony and received our grant payment for 2016.

How It Should Be Done

Jay Katz

"Mary", a developmentally disabled adult with no family, had been receiving services at the Janet Pomeroy Center in San Francisco for many years. Our ombudsman, Jay Katz, had worked for the Center for many years prior to his retirement. He received a courtesy call from the Center advising that "Mary" had been transferred from a hospital where she was being treated for pneumonia to St. Francis Pavilion, a nursing home in Daly City.

Jay and our Program Manager, Judith, immediately went to St. Francis to check on Mary. Mary had been placed on hospice receiving comfort care only (no food or water). She had failed to pass a swallowing test. Though not capable of verbal communication, Mary was well able to communicate her feelings. She was very happy to see Jay. Michelle, a member of the staff from the Pomeroy Center and who was very familiar to Jay was with Mary at the time. Judith from OSSMC was concerned about Mary's care and suggested that a swallowing evaluation should be re-done, as she felt Mary was capable of eating. Supported by Michelle from the Pomeroy Center, who had been providing care to Mary at the Pomeroy Center and had been feeding her for 20 years, permission was sought from Mary's conservator for a second swallowing evaluation and was granted.

The retesting was done immediately and Michelle from the Pomeroy Center was able to be present, giving guidance on how she had been able to feed Mary. Mary passed the test, and thanks to the quick action and strong advocacy of our ombudsman, Mary was then permitted to consume honey, thick liquids and pureed food. She immediately ate a bowl of pudding and loved it.

Over the course of the next 24 hours many staff from the Pomeroy Center dropped by to visit with Mary. She was surrounded by music and laughter from this warm and loving community of people including our very own field ombudsman, Jay. St. Francis staff were so open to learn from this skilled group of people who so intimately knew their client. They were soaking up knowledge on how to tailor their services to meet the very special, individualized needs of this new client of theirs.

Twenty-four hours after the swallowing evaluation, Mary passed away very peacefully, totally encircled by people she knew and loved. We are glad to have had an opportunity to advocate for Mary and to have had such a positive impact on her final hours.
